

Sample Book

Steve Schwartz
Imperial College London

6 February 2005

Contents

1	First Chapter	5
1.1	The Beginning	5
1.2	The Middle and End	5
2	Second Chapter	7
2.1	Final Thoughts	7

Chapter 1

First Chapter

1.1 The Beginning

This is a book based on work by [1]. It will be very boring, but will demonstrate everything I need.

1.2 The Middle and End

It is well known that some people are more intelligent than others [2]. Unfortunately, those less able don't realise that, which can lead to confusion.

Bibliography

- [1] S.J. Schwartz. RANDOM thoughts i once had. In A.Somebody and B. Somebodyelse, editors, Proc. of 7th International Random Thoughts conference, pages 550–552, Woodstock, New York, 1992. American Institute of Idiots.
- [2] S.J.Schwartz, M. Longmore, and A. N. Other. Nobel prize. Geophys. Res. Lett., 7:1–10, 1990.

Chapter 2

Second Chapter

2.1 Final Thoughts

I hope this has served to show how I managed to get this to work. More ideas can be found in [1, 2].

Bibliography

- [1] M. Longmore and A. N. Other. Correction to nobel prize. J. of Corrections, 1:6–8, 1991.
- [2] S.J. Schwartz. RANDOM thoughts i once had. In A.Somebody and B. Somebodyelse, editors, Proc. of 7th International Random Thoughts conference, pages 550–552, Woodstock, New York, 1992. American Institute of Idiots.