Have students introduce themselves to each other at their tables. Have them each take out a page, and write on it what they expect or hope to get out of this course. Ask them to discuss this at their tables and look for common themes or discuss why there is no common theme. Ask for volunteers to share with the class. Have students write an interpretation of the Oppenheimer quote on a separate page, identified only by table number. Redistribute these to di